

NICKY LEADS HYLAN AS POLICE PARADE

Returning Fugitive Bows to Crowds Assembled to Greet
City Guardians.

ABOUT 8,000 ARE IN LINE

Mayor Decorates Honor Men
After Covering Entire Line of March on Foot.

Strictly speaking, it was Mayor Hylan who led the police parade yesterday. Mayor Hylan, with his silk topper in one hand and the new police flag, somewhat neat but rather gaudy, in the other, now waving the topper, now the flag, and bestowing the Hylan smile with artistic gracefulness, first upon a group of girl stenographers in an office window, again upon a gang of laborers in a side street.

But speaking quite differently, what about the debonaire gentleman who rode down Fifth avenue in a touring car, a little while before the parade started, rising now and again to bow to the waiting crowds that didn't have the first suspicion he was "Nicky Aronstein"? Well, whoever led the parade, "Nicky" was at least the herald, the harbinger, the Grand Preceding Plenipotentiary. All he needed was a flourish of trumpets.

And no matter who led it, it was one of the best police parades the city ever has had. The weather hardly could have been better. For a few minutes after the band had escorted the Mayor to the reviewing stand, and just before the presentation of medals was made, the skies clouded over and a few drops of rain fell.

Eight thousand men were in line, including the three thousand reserves. Eleven bands made music. Not an accident occurred upon the line of march. Broadway from Bowling Green to Eleventh street was lined three deep with watchers, and there were the usual office building galleries. At Eleventh street the line turned west to Greenwich street and up Greenwich and Seventh avenue to Fortieth street, where it turned east and came down Fifth avenue past the reviewing stands at Twenty-sixth street.

The parade started promptly at 11:30 o'clock from the Battery. Mayor Hylan started with it and covered the whole march on foot.

Inspector Dominick Henry, who was cleared of the charge of neglect of duty Friday and reinstated the same day, was the centre of interest at the reviewing stand. He wore a new brown suit and soft hat. It was the first police parade he had watched in thirty years.

Friends crowded around him to offer their congratulations. They called to him from every corner of the stand. Mrs. Henry was with him, and the inspector looked a happy man.

Among those at the reviewing stand were Archbishop Hayes, Rear Admiral Glennon, commandant of the Third naval district; Rhinelander Waldo, a former Police Commissioner; Commissioner and Mrs. Richard Enright; Francis M. Hugo, Secretary of State; Mr. and Mrs. F. Cunliffe-Owen, Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan; Grover H. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and Mrs. Whalen.

At ten minutes past one the parade halted at Thirtieth street and Fifth avenue. With some waving of the green, white and blue police flag and some waving of the silk topper, the Mayor proceeded to his box.

The honor men came forward to be decorated. Mayor Hylan, accompanied by Commissioner Enright, pinning on the medals and congratulating the men. Mayor Hylan read a brief speech.

The honor men were acting Detective Sergeant Joseph A. Walsh, who received the department medal of honor, having arrested a holdup man after being twice wounded; Patrolman Harry Cohen, the Rhinelander medal for valor for arresting under fire another holdup man; Patrolman John J. Watan of the detective division, who captured a burglar after a pistol battle, the Isaac Bell medal for bravery; Patrolman James J. Devany, the Peter F. Meyer medal, for another holdup arrest; Patrolman George S. Lane, who shot a murderer who attempted to kill him, the Automobile Club of America medal; Patrolman John J. Wismar, who shot and killed a holdup man, the Walter Scott medal for valor, and Patrolman John P. Monahan, the Brooklyn Citizen medal, for the arrest of two holdup men.

The snappiest, best marching outfit in the whole order of march was the Wanamaker girls' battalion, under Major Anna Hoffman. In trim blue uniforms, which were feminine enough not to be freaky, they marched briskly and with good alignment, and in general were not unpleasant to contemplate.

RICHMOND BANDITS
GET $3,500 PAY ROLL

Alleged Driver of Their Limousine Caught at Ferry.

Edward Smith, 25 years old, of 150 Christopher street, was locked up in the Stapleton police station last night, accused of being the accomplice of two masked highwaymen who held up George Stroeckel, a messenger for the Seigel-Cole Manufacturing Company, 127 Chestnut avenue, Rosebank, as he was about to enter the firm's offices at noon yesterday and stole a payroll amounting to $3,500.

Mr. Stroeckel, who lives at 1179 New York avenue, Rosebank, was returning from the Stapleton National Bank with the payroll when the robbery occurred. The highwaymen attacked him twenty feet from the entrance to his employer's building. One covered him with a pistol while the second grabbed a black leather bag containing the money. The two then jumped into a blue limousine that was standing at the curb further down the street and disappeared.

The police of the Rosebank station were notified and a description of the automobile was flashed to all the ferry houses. At about half past 1 o'clock an automobile following closely the description of the one used in the holdup drew up at the Elizabethport ferry. Policeman William Neugent questioned Smith, who was alone in the car, and not receiving a satisfactory answer took him into custody. After several hours of questioning by Joseph Mulloy, District Attorney of Richmond, and Captain John Sullivan, head of the Richmond detectives, Smith admitted, the police say, that he knew the robbers, but refused to reveal their names. He met the men in City Hall Park Friday night, the police quote Smith as saying, where the robbery was planned. He was offered $500 to drive them to and from the scene.

Brooklyn War Shift Started.

Ground was broken yesterday by John N. Harman, Park Commissioner of Brooklyn, for the granite Home Roll Monument in Prospect Park. On it will be carved the names of the 2,500 Brooklyn men and three Brooklyn women who lost their lives in the war. The women were Lillian T. De Long, Edna May Frazee and Marie B. Miceli.

PROTESTS OF JERSEY COMMUTERS HEARD

I.C.C. Examiner Gets Figures of H. and M. Comptroller.

Charles Garry, examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, began yesterday taking testimony in the protest of Jersey commuters against the fare raises granted the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad in the Hudson tubes.

From the 10 cent fare on the Thirty-third street tube and the 8 cent fare on the downtown lines the company looks for an added $925,455 in revenue a year, F. H. Sillock, controller of the company, testified. He said rents in the Hudson Terminal buildings, having been raised 18 per cent, will yield $315,968 more. The total from the buildings he estimated at $2,851,000.

John J. Fallon, Corporation Counsel of Hoboken, was provoked when J. V. Davies, chief engineer and another witness for the company, corrected his previous testimony by adding $1,896,000 to the bonded amount upon which the company would receive a 5 per cent. return under the new railroad act. He omitted the item before through an oversight, Davies explained, whereat Fallon protested the witness was unreliable and asked that the company's records be produced.

CRAIG MOVES TO SUE BEROLZHEIMER

Urges Action to 'Enforce
Liability of Chamberlain.'

Charles L. Craig, Comptroller of the city, carried out his threat yesterday in the feud between him and Philip Berolzheimer, City Chamberlain, by asking John P. O'Brien, Corporation Counsel, to "take appropriate action to enforce the liability of the said Berolzheimer and his sureties for the loss suffered by the city of New York by reason of his default and neglect."

The Comptroller alleges that the Chamberlain failed to collect $2,500,000 from the State Commissioner of Education on March 1, and that last year $1,300,000 was similarly delayed until May 22. In both cases, Mr. Craig contends, the Chamberlain violated the law in not obtaining payment when due, or at least making demands.

K. C. Night Schools Continued.

The Knights of Columbus free night schools for former service men will be maintained just so long as they are needed for purposes of reconstruction, without any drive on the public for funds, James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia, supreme knight of the K. of C., announced yesterday.

$50,000,000 IN TAXES YIELDED BY BROKERS

Licenses and Stock Transactions Enrich Government.

More than $50,000,000 a year in taxes is received from brokers' licenses and stock transactions, according to a statement given out yesterday by William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue for Manhattan.

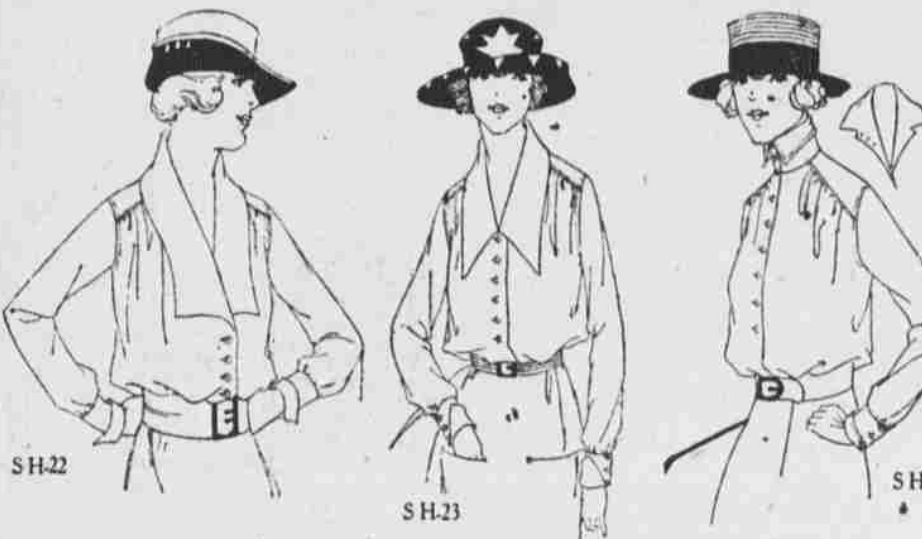

"In the Borough of Manhattan there are 8,999 stock brokers, many of whom are members of one exchange or another," said Collector Edwards. "They pay what is known as a special or license tax of $50 a year. In addition thereto if they are members of an exchange and the salable value of their seats be $2,000 or over they pay a special tax of $100. If they are members of an exchange the salable value of whose seats is $1,000 or over they pay a special tax of $100 a year to the Government."

There also are about 4,000 of what are known as produce or commodity brokers, meaning those who sell goods or wares on a commission basis. These brokers pay a tax of $50 a year.

Collector Edwards said that every month of the year he sells an average of $3,000,000 worth of documentary stamps.
